

A neutral net (Net Neutrality) is essential for the free expression of ideas. Removing this right is tantamount to offering large Internet Service Providers another revenue source, that they do not need, while quieting many voices from those who need it most.

Net Neutrality should be established as a utility and basic social service just like the equal distribution of electricity is an expected basic service.

The Internet is an invention unlike anything else that the world has ever experienced. Let's not diminish its value for the sake of a few more profit points!
